ABSTRACT

This publication presents information on school statistics for South Dakota and its 176 school districts. Just over half (50.9%) of the state's schools have 1 to 100 students, and only 6.7% enroll more than 500 students. The 1997-98 state enrollment of 132,024 represents a decline from the enrollment of 134,052 in 1995-96. State summary information is presented in the following categories: (1) school and district information; (2) 1997 fall enrollment; (3) program indicators; (4) student achievement; (5) dropout summary; (6) staff characteristics; (7) and financial and state aid data. The second section presents a summary of school and district data, and the third section contains school district profiles. In addition to a profile for each district, the report contains data tables providing information about staff and finances. A glossary of terms is included. (Contains 56 graphs and 81 tables.) (SLD)

Here is your 1997-98 edition of "Education in South Dakota: A Statistical Profile." The publication has gained wide acceptance as an indispensable "go to" source of information about education in South Dakota. It is produced by the South Dakota Department of Education & Cultural Affairs.

We hope the minor changes made in this year's version (which is the department's fourth annual edition) enhance the publication's attractiveness and readability. We welcome your suggestions and feedback.

The information is also available online via the department's website at <http://www.state.sd.us/deca/>. The utilization and responses to the electronic version grow every year as more people gain access to the World Wide Web.

South Dakota schools, too, have entered the cyberworld in a major way in the past two years, as Governor William J. Janklow's "Wiring the Schools" initiative has installed world-class telecommunications infrastructure in public schools throughout the state.

Many parties express interest in more and better information about schools and the state's K-12 education system. The department continues to enhance the contents of this document--and the companion website--to meet the needs which are evident.

Sincerely,

Ray Christensen, Secretary
South Dakota Department of Education & Cultural Affairs

EARLY CHILDHOOD PROGRAMS

Many policymakers believe that educational efforts targeting disadvantaged children before they begin their traditional schooling will improve their chances of success in the K-12 system. Consequently, the federal government has expanded the Head Start and Even Start programs over the past five years. Head Start is a program which provides instruction to pre-school aged children from economically disadvantaged backgrounds. Even Start serves a similar population, but targets parents with low levels of literacy and seeks to educate not just the children, but parents and children. The data below cover public school, federally funded, and non-public programs.

TEST PERFORMANCE OF HOME SCHOOLED STUDENTS:

People disagree on whether alternative instruction (homeschooling) can help a child academically. While a large number of studies exist, almost all of which show homeschooled children testing above average, the research is inconclusive and will probably remain so. Even the best studies are unable to obtain test scores from a significant portion of alternative instruction children. The only data available consists of collections of test scores from selected groups of alternative instruction groups. Even where a state requires testing by law, many alternative instruction individuals simply do not comply with testing requirements. Moreover, none of the reported research attempts to compare test scores of these children with norming groups by demographic characteristics.

THE TYPICAL STUDENT OF ALTERNATIVE INSTRUCTION:

Keeping in mind the doubled chance for self-selection to influence the results of survey research, one can still try to construct a rough profile of alternative instruction families. While there is variation among surveys, certain characteristics seem to be emerging. Compared to the general population, alternative instruction families seem to be more religious, more conservative, white, somewhat more affluent and with somewhat more years of education, and more likely to be a two-parent family. There are usually two children of school age who are receiving alternative instruction, and a third, usually younger, in the family. Typically, the mother takes the largest share of the teaching responsibility, but the father participates. In some families, fathers are the major player in the alternative instruction activities.

ALTERNATIVE INSTRUCTION SUMMARY:

Alternative instruction (homeschooling) is a small but rapidly growing practice in which parents design and implement educational programs for school-aged children. The activity replaces full-time, in-school programs and is used to satisfy state compulsory education requirements. It takes place primarily in a family setting or in a nearby community. Normally parents plan and implement the learning program, although sometimes they may find a tutor and sometimes older children may organize their own independent study. It may be structured or unstructured, it may be affiliated with a public or private school in some way, it may involve shared lessons with other alternative instruction families. Although usually based at home, it often extends beyond the home. Alternative instruction families visit libraries, museums, factories, homes for the aged, churches, and, in some cases, they attend classes. Some attend public and/or private school, a community school or some other special program for one or more sessions each week.

ALTERNATIVE PROGRAMS

Alternative education describes a variety of schooling and programmatic options for "youth-at-risk" who do not meet codified norms of behavior or academic success in mainstream settings. Each program differs according to their mission. Alternative education programs are a necessary and vital way to recognize that all youth are individuals with different learning styles, preferences, and needs.

In the 1997-98 school year there were 25 alternative programs throughout the state. Some are funded by federal, state and local matching grants. Seventeen programs were funded through the federal Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA), 12 of which were also funded through the state's Youth at Risk appropriation. Both grants were matched by local districts. Alternative programs provide a second chance for students who have dropped out of the traditional K-12 system. With the exception of the first enrollment table, all data below represents only the federally funded alternative programs.

GENERAL EDUCATIONAL DEVELOPMENT (GED) SERVICES

Created in 1942 as a service to World War II veterans, the GED provides those who did not complete high school with the opportunity to receive the equivalent of a high school diploma. The GED is administered by the GED Testing Service. The costs of the test are covered by fees paid by the test taker. The test consists of five tests which measure general knowledge and skill development in writing, social studies, science, math, literature and the arts. The minimum age requirement to take the GED in South Dakota is 16. Scored on a scale of 20-80, South Dakota requires a minimum score of 40 per test section and a total average of 45.

SPECIAL EDUCATION

The provisions of South Dakota Codified Law 13-37-1 define children in need of special education and special education related services as any person under the age of 21 who is a resident of the state of South Dakota and who because of his/her educational needs is not adequately provided for through the usual facilities and services of the school. The Administrative Rules of South Dakota, Article 24:05, provide the rules governing special education programs for public and nonpublic schools. The data below are taken from Special Education's Child Count, which looks at enrollment in Special Education on December each year.

STANFORD 9 ACHIEVEMENT TEST

The Stanford Achievement Test Series, Ninth Edition is an overall measure of achievement in the basic skills area. The Otis-Lennon School Ability Test (OLSAT), Seventh Edition is a measure of abstract thinking and reasoning ability, measuring the same abilities that are emphasized in school and that are related to success in school learning. Ability scores and achievement scores should ideally be similar. Only Grades 4 and 8 take the OLSAT. All scores are percentile ranks, which indicates the performance of a typical South Dakota student relative to student performance nationally.

THE COLLEGE BOARD'S ADVANCED PLACEMENT (AP) PROGRAM

The College Board's Advanced Placement (AP) program is a cooperative effort involving high schools, colleges and universities, and the College Board. High schools offer students opportunities to learn at the college level in a variety of disciplines including mathematics, sciences, English, art, history, music, social sciences, and foreign languages. Students take national examinations in May of each year. The tests are scored on a scale of 1 to 5. Colleges and universities award college credit on the basis of the AP examination scores. A score of three is usually required for credit, colleges and universities make their own decisions for each examination.

NATIONAL MERIT SCHOLARS QUALIFYING TEST (NMSQT) / PRELIMINARY SAT (PSAT)

The National Merit Scholarship program provides students the opportunity to take the Preliminary SAT, or PSAT, during or prior to their junior year in high school. Graded on a scale of 20-80, the PSAT tests students' math, verbal and writing skills. Each state is given an allocation of students to qualify as semifinalists based on the state's percentage of the national total of high school graduating seniors. In South Dakota, approximately 50 students with the highest scores become semifinalists. Finalists are then chosen out of this pool, again with a representative allocation chosen from each state. In South Dakota, approximately 40 students are annually chosen as finalists.
